V. Reading Comprehension

READ THE PASSAGES GIVEN BELOW AND ANSWER THE FOLLOWING QUESTIONS-

From Mumbai to Thiruvananthapuram, various local authorities have finally started rolling out Covid vaccination drives for pregnant women. They have a lot of catching up to do, because India delayed giving the go-ahead for pregnant women until this month. In a country where women's health gets less attention to begin with, we must make sure the pandemic doesn't worsen the inequality.

The delay was despite widespread evidence of the second wave causing higher pregnancy complications. Some data from Mumbai suggested that Covid had become the leading cause of maternal deaths. By contrast, US CDC and WHO made it clear months ago that vaccines should not be withheld from pregnant individuals at risk of severe Covid.

In overall vaccination, too, a worrying gender gap is crying for attention, with wide regional disparities: Women have got 52% of the doses in Kerala vs 43% in UP. In Himachal Pradesh, where the fifth National Family Health Survey found 17.6% women saying they usually take decisions about their own healthcare, women have got 51% of the jabs. But in Bihar where only 9.4% say they take decisions; women have got only 45% of the jabs.

Patriarchy normalizes putting men's needs first. Governments must go the extra mile to offset this mindset. A special outreach is needed to get Covid vaccines to women. Women's only camps are a good idea. But finally, many of the nation's most vulnerable sections will need door-to-door vaccination.

1. What is TRUE with regards to paragraph one?
   - The vaccination drive for pregnant women is the same.
   - The vaccination drive for pregnant women has stopped.

   - Vaccination of pregnant women was not done on time, knowing that the second wave has aggravated complications in pregnant women.
   - The second wave aggravated the pregnancy problem.
   - Vaccination of pregnant women was done on time, knowing that the second wave has aggravated complications in pregnant women.
   - Vaccination caused pregnancy complications.

3. The meaning of the word 'Patriarchy' is…
   - A social system in which power is held by men and women both, through norms and customs that favour both and does not withhold opportunity for women.
   - A social system in which power is held by some powerful, through norms and customs that favour those powerful men and withhold opportunity for women.
   - A social system in which power is held by men, through norms and customs that favour men and withhold opportunity for women.
   - A social system in which power is held by women, through norms and customs that favour women and withhold opportunity for men.

4. What is the approach taken by the writer to conclude the passage?
   - He has praised the government for the vaccination drive pan India.
   - He has criticized the government's delayed response towards the vaccination of the pregnant women.

Mohandas took his studies seriously and tried to brush up on his English and Latin by taking the University of London matriculation examination. But, during the three years he spent in England, his main preoccupation was with personal and moral issues rather than with academic ambitions. The transition from the half-rural atmosphere of Rajkot to the cosmopolitan life of London was not easy for him. As he struggled painfully to adapt himself to Western food, dress, and etiquette, he felt awkward. His vegetarianism became a continual source of embarrassment to him. Fortunately for him he came across a vegetarian restaurant as well as a book providing a reasoned defence of vegetarianism, which henceforth became a matter of conviction for him, not merely a legacy of his Vaishnava background. The missionary zeal he developed for vegetarianism helped to draw the pitifully shy youth out of his shell and gave him a new poise.

In the boarding houses and vegetarian restaurants of England, Gandhi met only food faddists but some earnest men and women to whom we owed his introduction to the Bible and, more important, the Bhagavad-Gita, which he read for the first time in its English translation by Sir Edwin Arnold. The Bhagavad-Gita (commonly known as the Gita) is part of the great epic the Mahabharat and, in the form of a philosophical poem, is the most popular expression of Hinduism. The English vegetarians were a motley crowd. They included socialists and humanitarians such as Edward Carpenter, "the British Thoreau"; Fabians such as George Bernard Shaw; and Theosophists such as Annie Besant.

1. How did Mohandas spend his three years in London?
   - He was preoccupied with the English language.
   - He was paying attention to his academic ambition.
   - He was absorbed in political pursuits.
   - He was engaged in personal and moral issues.

2. Which of the following sentences are TRUE from the passage?
   A. Mohandas struggled with the Western food, dress and etiquette.
   B. Mohandas read Bhagavad-Gita for the first time in its English translation by Sir Edwin Arnold.
   - Neither A nor B is true.
   - Both A and B are true.
   - Only A is true.
   - Only B is true.

3. What is the meaning of the word 'Legacy', as given in the passage?
   - Mission
   - Enthusiasm
   - Tradition
   - Function

4. What is the primary purpose of the passage?
   - To highlight Mohandas' understanding of Bhagavad-Gita.
   - To bring forth Mohandas' struggle from Vegetarianism to non-vegetarianism.
   - To bring into focus London's contribution in shaping up Gandhi's personality and his political ideas.
   - To highlight the eventful journey of Mohandas to becoming Gandhi.

On Saturday, with the Himalayan sky darkening and the first snowflakes drifting down, Jose had reached a memorable milestone in his life. He had just turned 80, and completed cycling 4,500kms all the way from Thrissur to the rarefied heights of Ladakh. What better way for a man who is a plumber by profession and a cyclist by passion to celebrate his birthday.

Josettan, as he is fondly called by his friends, is from Athani in Thrissur. He told TOI over phone from Leh that he had cycled to a spot just 34 kms from Khardung La, which is located at 17,600 feet above sea level and is the highest motorable point allowed for civilians. He could not proceed further on Saturday from there because of unexpected snowfall.

In this cycle expedition, christened 'Wheel of Life', Jose is accompanied by Gokul P. R. from Ayyanthole in Thrissur, who had undertaken a cycling trip from Thrissur to Khardung La in 2013 via Manali. Gokul's wife Dr. Lekha Lakshmi and their 14-year-old daughter joined them from Ladakh after reaching there by flight.

Jose who retired from the Thrissur Medical College Hospital as a plumber, said he has no major health issues during his cycling trip. "I encountered an oxygen problem when I reached Leh about nine days ago,but my fellow cyclists supported me by providing artificial supply of oxygen", he said. "Oxygen shortage is a problem commonly encountered by all, including military personnel, on reaching Leh," Dr. Lakshmi said.

Jose said he started cycling when he was in class V. "Cycling is my passion and I used to cycle for long distances in the past. But this one is obviously the longest cycling trip I've undertaken," he said. He is also a regular participant in swimming and marathon competitions. Jose has won accolades for excelling in triathlon competitions as well. Wheel of Life, which was flagged off by former Kerala education minister Prof. C. Raveendranath from Thrissur on July 15, is being supported by all the cycle clubs of Kerala, as well SAI, Thrissur district sports council. Thrissur district Olympic Association, Nehru Yuva Kendra Sangatan and the Ministry of youth Affairs and Sports. Jose's wife and three children are ecstatic about his achievement but also a little worried for his safety.

The transformation of Delhi into a capital that controlled vast areas of the subcontinent started with the foundation of the Delhi Sultanate in the beginning of the thirteen century. The Delhi Sultans built many cities like Siri, Jahapanah, Tuglakabad, etc., in the area that we now know as Delhi. Although inscriptions, coins and architecture provide a lot of information about the administration under the Delhi Sultans, especially valuable are 'histories' (tawarikh) written in Persian, the language of administration under the Delhi Sultans. The authors of tawarikh were learned men: secretaries, administrators, poets and courtiers, who both recounted events and advised rulers on governance, emphasizing the importance of just rule.

The authors of tawarikh lived in cities (mainly Delhi) and hardly ever in villages. They often wrote their histories for Sultans in the hope of rich rewards.

In 1236, Sultan Iltutmish's daughter, Razia became Sultan. The chronicler of the age, Minhaj Siraj recognized that she was more able and qualified than all her brothers. But he was not comfortable at having a queen as a ruler. He believed that the queen's rule went against the ideal social order created by God, in which women were supposed to be subordinate to men. Nor were the nobles happy at her attempts to rule independently. She was removed from the throne on 1240.

1. After reading the passage, it can be inferred that it is an extract from a book on:
   - Cultural history
   - Social history
   - Political history
   - Economic history

2. Which is the most important source of information on Delhi Sultans?
   - Coins
   - Inscriptions
   - Architecture
   - Tawarikh

3. Which of the following is NOT TRUE about the writers of tawarikh?
   - They mostly lived in villages rather than cities.
   - They advised the rulers on ideal governance.
   - They wrote about the events of the time.
   - They wrote histories for getting rich rewards.

4. Razia was removed from the throne of Delhi basically because she
   - Was an unable ruler
   - Was a woman
   - Ruled independently
   - Was disliked by her chronicler

The recent conflagrations in the city vividly illustrate to Londoners what fire could do if their metropolis were built on the New York plan. The City, however, is an exceptional part of London, and taking the British metropolis as it is, with its hundreds of square miles of suburbs, and contrasting its condition with that of New York, we are led to adopt the opinion that London, with its excellent fire brigade, is safe from a destructive conflagration. It was stated that the fire brigade of New York is unsurpassed for promptness, skill, and heroic intrepidity, but their task, by contrast, is a heavy one in a city like New York, with its numerous wooden buildings, wooden or asphalt roofs, buildings from four to ten stories high, with long unbraced walls, weakened by man large windows, containing more than ten times the timber an average London house dies, and that very inflammable, owing to the dry and hot American climate. But this is not all. In New York we find the five and six story tenement houses with two or three families on each floor, each with their private ash barrel or box kept handy in their rooms, all striving to keep warm during the severe winters of North America. We also find narrow streets and high buildings, with nothing to arrest the extension of a fire except a few small parks, not even projecting or effectual fire-walls between the several buildings. And to all this must be added the perfect freedom with which the city authorities of New York allow in its most populous portions large stables, timber yards, carpenters' shops, and the manufacture and storage of inflammable materials. Personal liberty could not be carried to a more dangerous extent. Ought to be thankful that in such matters individual freedom is somewhat hampered in our old-fashioned and quieter-going country.

1. What does the word “conflagrations” mean in the context of the passage?
   - Protest
   - Disasters
   - Violence
   - Fires

2. The passage is primarily concerned with:
   - Criticizing New York’s city planners for inadequate fire safety measures.
   - Narrating observations of a fire chief regarding London.
   - Debating why New York’s model is better than London.
   - Analyzing the effectiveness of the London and New York fire departments.

3. Which of the following statements is NOT TRUE according to the passage?
   - None of the mentioned options
   - Fires are equally likely in both London and New York.
   - The author is critical about New York’s planning.
   - New York is kept safe from fires by its fire department.

4. Which of these would the author suggest to someone developing a new city?
   - All the mentioned options
   - Keep lots of windows in buildings so that people can get out in case of fires
   - Keep lots of parks in between blocks of buildings to prevent fires from spreading
   - If the city is in a dry and hot country, keep buildings closer together to prevent hot air from flowing too quickly
